

Cabazon City Council To View 'Hoopo' Game

CABAZON — The city council here will view a "test game" of "hoopo" before ruling on a license request submitted by a Mr. Hagen for the operation of a hoopo parlor in the old El Cid building.

Hagen, who was unable to explain the details of the game at last night's regular city council meeting here, said he formerly operated in Cabazon 10 or 11 years ago. He said he "closed up," while council chairman Verna S. White said he "was closed up."

"If I remember that was the time Doc Morton and I put the lock on the door," she said.

Hagen pointed out the club was opened in Cabazon two more times by another man, but went broke both times. The same man opened in Sunnymead with similar luck, and Hagen bought him out. Hagen then opened in Palm Springs, but the Sheriff ordered him closed.

"Like idiots we did," he commented, saying the legality of hoopo has yet to be decided in a court of law. He said operation of the game is a "local option," and he is willing to risk an arrest to challenge its legality.

He added the hoopo parlor would attract a lot of people to Cabazon. Though he said he destroyed his notes on the game several years ago, not knowing he would be trying to open again, he told the council a person can play it all night and not lose a penny.

Mrs. White said while they would like to grant the license, Cabazon wants to avoid getting into "the headlines," un-
